

Open Chairs helps you refill last-minute cancellations

It offers each opening to the right clients, waits for replies, and keeps track for you.

Why it's needed

- Today, you or Carla text three or four people from the Google Sheet at once.
- Sometimes two people say yes, and one of them ends up disappointed.
- On busy days it's hard to track who was asked, and some chairs stay empty.

CANCELLATIONS WITHIN 48 HOURS

Refilled today: about

3 in 10

Your goal: at least

5 in 10

HOW IT WORKS

You decide. Open Chairs handles the follow-up.

- 1

Add the opening

Service, stylist and time. Nothing is sent yet.
- 2

Approve who gets asked

It suggests matching clients, longest wait first.
- 3

Offers go out

Three clients at a time get a link with Yes and No.
- 4

The first yes holds the slot

So two people can never book the same chair.
- 5

You confirm in Square

If nobody confirms within 15 minutes, it moves on.

Haircut · Lena

Tue, Oct 13 · 2:00 PM – 2:45 PM · 45 min

Round 1 · 3 texted

Offers out

Waiting for replies

Maya Thompson

Waiting for reply

Reply by 11:00 AM (about 1 hr 59 min left)

Preview client's text (simulated)

Ellis Moreno

Waiting for reply

Reply by 11:00 AM (about 1 hr 59 min left)

Preview client's text (simulated)

Rosa Delgado

Waiting for reply

Reply by 11:00 AM (about 1 hr 59 min left)

Preview client's text (simulated)

Simulated text — not sent

Juniper Salon: a Haircut with Lena just opened up — Tue Oct 13, 2:00 PM (45 min). Reply within 2 hours — late replies aren't guaranteed the appointment: [offer link]

To Maya Thompson · would have been sent 9:00 AM

First yes wins.

Next up: nobody. This is the last round.

History (9)

View workflow in Temporal

Cancel opening

BUILT AROUND YOUR RULES

It follows the rules you set

-

Only texts clients who agreed to texts

You record each person's answer when they join the waitlist.
-

Texts go out 9am to 8pm

Same-day openings can go out at any time.
-

Moves on when nobody replies

If no one is left, you and Carla get a text to decide what's next.
-

Never books a late reply on its own

You decide, and the text tells clients late replies aren't guaranteed.
-

One offer per client at a time

So no one accepts two openings and double-books.

Your appointment

Tuesday, October 13

2:00 PM – 2:45 PM

Service	Haircut · 45 min
Stylist	LE Lena
Where	Juniper Salon (sample salon)

Reply by 11:00 AM

(about 1 hr 59 min left)

ⓘ Offered to 3 people. The first yes gets it. Late replies aren't guaranteed.

Yes, I want it

No thanks

The text you received

 Simulated text — not sent

Juniper Salon: a Haircut with Lena just opened up — Tue Oct 13, 2:00 PM (45 min). Reply within 2 hours — late replies aren't guaranteed the appointment: [this page]

WHAT THIS PROTOTYPE INCLUDES

What's simulated, and what isn't built yet

DEMO Simulated

- No real texts are sent. Every message is shown on screen and labelled "Simulated text — not sent".
- The waitlist uses 24 sample clients, and three stylist names are placeholders.
- Refill numbers on screen are demo data, not real results.

Not built yet

- A texting service that sends from the salon's number, staff sign-in, and running online.
- Connections to your Google Sheet and Square. Square stays manual, as you asked.

WHAT WE SUGGEST

Next, a walkthrough with your real cancellations

1

A 30-minute walkthrough

We use a few cancellations from the last two weeks and check it suggests the clients you would have picked.

2

A few details from you

Your other three stylists' names, usual service lengths, and how you'd like the text worded.

3

A two-week trial, if you're happy

With a few opted-in clients. We'd track how many 48-hour cancellations get refilled, and how often you step in.

As you asked, it now warns you clearly if it ever stops or fails, so you never have to assume it's still running.